THE WOUNDED TRANSFERRED

PATIENTS FROM THE OLIVETTE SENT TO LOCAL HOSPITALS.

THEILIANG STORIES OF THE OPERATIONS RE-FORE SANTIAGO TOLD BY THE HEROES-TALES OF AMERICAN GALLANTRY

AND SPANISH BRUTALITY. The Olivette, which arrived at Quarantine on Saturday, floated up to the dock at Pacific-st .. Brooklyn, at 9:30 a. m. yesterday with a passenger list of over one hundred and fifty sick and wounded soldiers from the battlefield of Santlago. The arrival of the scarred and sunburned heroes gave New-York a closer view than it had before had of the serious side of this war, and impressed upon the minds of those who saw the men a most vivid idea of the suffering and hardship the soldiers have endured for their country.

Only a handful of persons had assembled at the pler when the boat came in. In less than ten minutes after the Olivette had been tied to the pier a score of surgeons began to take the men off in ambulances, and the work was promptly and efficiently done.

If the men were glad to get back they were not demonstrative in showing it. Almost without exception they declared that they were eager to get back again with their regiments. They were cheerful and as happy as they could be under the circumstances, with no complaints of a serious nature and nothing but praise for their comrades, who had carried everything before them on the battlefield under the most ad-

The police and hospital arrangements for the reception of the wounded were absolutely per-There was not a single hitch in the work of transferring them from the ship to the protested pier, which was done in the short space The soldiers were to be taken to the Long Island College Hospital and to St. Peter's Hospital, both in Henry-st., near the pier, but, in addition to the ambulances of these two hospitals, there also were several from St. Mary's, St. John's and the Eastern District hospitals, hesides the patrol wagons of the Fifty-fifth, Forty-fifth, Forty-eighth and Fifty-seventh police precincts, three express wagons and two coaches.

REMOVING THE PATIENTS.

Major George E. Bushnell, U. S. V., Major H. Appell and Lleutenant Howard, the executive officer of the Olivette: Lleutenants Smith and De La Teoro, Dr. Richard E. Shaw, the superintendent of the Long Island College Hospital, and several surgeons from St. Peter's Hospital superintended the removal of the wounded. The seriously wounded were carried out one by one on stretchers, down a temporary gangway to the pler, where they were placed in ambulances and taken to the hospitals. In all 104 patients were removed. This number was equally divided between the two hospitals. In all the Olivette brought 271 sick and wounded soldiers to this port. Of these one hundred were placed in the Marine Hospital on Staten Island: 104 in the two Brooklyn hos-58, who are now convalescent, were taken to Governor's Island on the General Hancock, and will report again for duty when required, and 9-all officers-were put off at Fort Wadsworth on Saturday night. While in Brooklyn the comfort of the wounded men will be generally supervised by Major Bushnell, a surgeon, who is acting under orders from the Surgeon-General of the Army.

While the disembarking was going on the slightly wounded and convalescent soldiers stood at the rails of the Olivette or sat on the decks talking among themselves or silently watching their stricken companions being borne away on the stretchers. As each patient passed, the officers of the Olivette and Major Bushnell checked his name on the roster, so that each man could be accounted for in the report.

The men plainly showed the effects of the terrible struggle at Santiago. They were tired and worn, hollow-eyed and listless, but they are a grim, determined-looking lot, nevertheless, and look as if they could take care of themselves in any kind of a fight. Most of them are bearded, all of them greatly tanned by a tropical sun. and many of them possessors of a wardrobe consisting only of an Army hat, a tattered blue been the ground for the story. flannel shirt and one-and-a-half legged trousers. Many were in their bare feet, but the slege they have passed through has made them utterly indifferent to such petty details. All of them carry souvenirs of their engagements at the front. They consist of Mauser bullets or portions of shells found on the field or extracted from their own bodies. Nearly every pair of trousers is minus a quarter or half of a leg, and the absence of the missing portions, now blood-soaked on Cuban soil, is testimonials to the efficacy of the "First Aid to the Injured." When a soldler gets shot in the leg or arm, or any part of his body that he can reach, he treats the wound with the "First Aid," and if he cannot a comrade does so. In order to get at the wound he cuts off a sleeve or a trouser leg and casts it away, or slits the seams and then patiently awaits his turn to be conveyed to the rear to the field hospitals.

Many of the soldiers were wounded in the thigh, calf or foot, showing that the Spaniards did nearly all of their shooting from the trenches or the tops of trees. Others were struck in the hand or head while lying flat to escape the rain of Mauser bullets. But tattered uniform or no uniform at all, wound of leg or foot or hand, seemed of no consequence to the soldiers now in the Brooklyn hospitals. They are delighted with their quarters, and, like veterans, may regale themselves with stories of dangers past.

They had a good bath and new nightshirts as soon as they reached the hospitals, and soon were resting with a keen sense of enjoyment in the scrupulously clean white beds in the large, airy rooms. Visitors were allowed, and men, women and children filed through the wards all yesterday afternoon, chatting with the soldiers or watching them with interest and admiration, The soldiers enjoyed it all, especially the pretty girls and the wondering children, and, above all else, the circuit of the court or recreation yard, where the heroes had the long-desired chew of tobacco or a good long pull at a pipe.

SPANISH ATTACKS ON WOUNDED.

There was hardly a man on the Olivette who did not have some story to tell of the repeated shooting by the Spaniards at the wounded and the surgeons who were caring for them. According to all reports, the Spaniards had no more respect for the wearers of the Red Cross than they would have had for so many flies. Many Americans were killed while they were being removed from the field, and several surgeons were also killed while ministering to the wounded. Private John Rogers, of the 8th Infantry, whose home is at No. 2,187 Seventhave., Manhattan, saw a Spanish sharpshooter fire at a surgeon-major who was carrying a wounded man from the field. The bullet missed the major but killed one of his assistants by Private Rogers's experience with Spanish bullets was a remarkable one. He bears on his body six wounds. One shot passed through his right leg, another through his left shoulder, another grazed his head, cutting a bad gash, and one more injured his left foot. from early morning until 3 p. m., when he was | who had the strength to use his vocal chords | ing upon the grounds. taken from the field. He received his first wound about 9 a. m., and his last while lying wounded behind a tree. This last shot was another instance of Spanish barbarity.

"Considering their actions," said Rogers, "our surgeons treated the Spanish like men, and not like the fiends they are. They gave them all the assistance they could, and bound up their wounds as tenderly as they did our own. The devils didn't deserve a thing but bullets."

The GORHAM Coy

invite attention to their large collection of CANES, UMBRELLAS, CROPS, GOLF CLUBS and WHIPS

mounted in Sterling Silver; each mounting is made to carry out the trickled down on his hand. style of the article upon which it is used.

BROADWAY AND 19TH STREET 23 Maiden Lane.

instance where a colored infantryman saw two Spanish sharpshooters in a tree shooting at an ambulance crew. The colored man had the great satisfaction of killing both Spaniards, eaving their bodies hanging in the trees.

The soldiers express the greatest contempt for their Cuban allies. They say the Cubans are selfish, ungrateful and cowardly, and that they did not at any time show a disposition to do anything sensational story of this nature is that told by Private H. L. Baker, Company I, 71st Regiment, of a Rough Rider, whose name he did not know. The cavalryman was wounded and lying on his right side behind a tree, when he rolled over and saw two insurgents robbing the orpse of an American soldier. The trooper, by making a desperate effort, reached his gun and fired. He killed one of the Cubans and wounded the other.

According to many stories told by the injured men, the Cubans were always begging food and other things from the Americans, but were never willing to share their own supplies. One day the men of Troop K, of the 3d Cavalry. were out of tobacco, and ready to give anything they had for a smoke or a chew. A Cuban rode along with a well-filled bag thrown over his saddle. Trooper William A. Wield asked him some tobacco, but the Cuban shook his head and indicated that he had none. Wield, while feigning to translate the Cuban's Spanish. slipped his knife through the saddle bag and a quantity of tobacco fell out. He and his comrades grabbed it and ran away, leaving a highly enraged Cuban behind them. As fighters the American soldiers say the Cubans were little better than grammar school cadets would have been. If they knew what to do they studiously avoided their duty, and if they understood that the Americans were shedding blood for their sakes they were careful not to display the first sign of gratitude or interest.

REGULARS AND VOLUNTEERS.

The heartiest good-fellowship was displayed at all times between the volunteers and the Regulars. This was shown clearly yesterday by the anciety of the Regulars to refute a pubished story accusing the 71st New-York Reg! ment of cowardice. A private of the 9th Infantry took the trouble, while waiting to be removed from the Olivette, to find the reporters and say that the 71st had rendered the most valuable assistance in several instances in rein forcing other regiments. While the fighting was hottest the regiments were hadly split up, and the volunteers and Regulars frequently found themselves shoulder to shoulder, obeying the orders of a Regular or a volunteer officer, just as it happened. In the confusion of the conflict the men lost no time in searching out their own commands, but pushed onward side by side.

Sergeant M. Smith, of Conpany E, 71st, said that whole bodies of men frequently found themselves thus separated from their own commands.

The volunteers were heavily handicapped by their old Springfield rifles, with their smoking powder. Wherever the men of the 71st or the 2d Massachusetts fired a volley the cloud of so unmistakably that the Spaniards would reply with the most deadly effect. For this reason they were ordered to stop firing several times for their own preservation. They were thus inactive some of the time, and, if anybody ever did question their bravery, that may have

The experiences and observations of Private H. L. Baker, of Company I, 71st Regiment, if put in print, would make a good history of the entire Santiago campaign, both on land and on sea. Private Baker was sent home to recover from a slight attack of fever. He was in the thick of the fight, but escaped without a wound. This is the story of his experiences as he told it to a Tribune reporter on the Olivette:

"The heaviest work in the fighting was done by the Rough Riders, the 13th Infantry and the 71st Regiment. This, I think, is what any participant in the battle of July 1 and 2 would say. The first shot was fired by Tom Isabel, of Colonel Roosevelt's cavalry. Isabel killed his man and how many others I don't know. He was wounded seven times before he quit. don't know which troop he was in, but I'll never forget the way he fought. The first man killed in the 71st Regiment was Private Decker, of Company I. We were ordered to make the top of a hill, and Decker was the first man there He dropped just as he was about to fire. The story about cowardice in the 71st is a lie, and that's all I care to say about it. We fought under great disadvantages because of our powder, and were several times told to stop firing. At one time we got into an ambush where we were fired on from three sides at once. This explains why so many of our fellows were vounded in the back and sides. Several were shot in the soles of the feet as they were lying on the ground. Much of the time we couldn't see the Spaniards at all, although we knew they were within three hundred yards of us. Sometimes it seemed as though the trees were full of them, picking us off right and left.

GOOD WORK OF THE ROUGH RIDERS.

"The work of the Rough Riders was something magnificent. They fought like fiends, and it is a wonder that so many of them came out of the fight alive. For that matter, it was most gratifying to hear the praise the foreign military attaches gave our troops. They said they never saw such fighting. Our fellows fought as though they did not know what defeat meant. They no more thought of turning back, even under the hottest fire, than they did of flying over the Spanish intrenchments right into Santiago. In the first day's fighting a body of seven hundred or eight hundred of our men, after two and a half hours of fighting, whipped and drove back four thousand Spaniards, although the enemy was strongly intrenched behind their own breastworks. We heard afterward that the four thousand Spaniards had boasted that for the two and a half hours they had held the entire American Army in check. When our troops finally gained the breastworks we found the ditches full of dead men, most of them shot through the head, and many on the hands and shoulders, these being the only parts of the whole day in the grounds. No more charming them we could aim at.

"I had the great good luck to witness the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet, and it was one of the grandest sights that history will ever tell about. Another sight that I never forget was the reception our men gave Lieutenant Hobson. Every man in the camp and to drag his legs out where Lieutenant Hobson was, joined in the demonstration, and you would have thought to see us that every man there was a raving maniae.

"I want to say a word for the doctors. They worked incessantly, and tried their best by their diligence to make up for the lamentable lack of their number. This was true not only on the field, but also on this ship coming up from San- was perceptible yesterday that clothing was immeevils didn't deserve a thing but bullets."

tiago. With over three hundred men aboard, diately required for those who have been brought from the Cuban battle-fields. There was hardly one tation. Not even a finger has been lost by the use of a surgeon's knife."

The soldiers are fond of relating their experiences with the Mauser bullet. They had heard a great deal of it before the war, and what they had heard had prejudiced them against it. Now, they say, they despise its boasted powers. Private Mont Manning, of the 6th Infantry, sald that in the fight of June 23 a Mauser bullet pierced his arm. He felt a little twinge there, but attributed it to rheumatism, and didn't know he was wounded until the blood had Joseph A. Golden, trumpeter of Troop K. 3d Cavalry, is wearing a hat through which a Mauser passed without touching a hair of his head. Another bullet passed through his right shoulder and left a course clearly indicated by two holes in his shirt. When he was shot he noticed a slight sensation, but thought merely that a comrade had hit him with the butt of his gun. A few minutes later he thought he was perspiring rather freely, and he put his hand to his shoulder. Much to his surprise, he saw that his hand was bloody, and that was the first he knew that he had been shot. After discovering the wound he walked four miles and swam across a deep creek before he had medical assistance.

Aboard the Olivette on the home trip Golden several times cheered up his companions giving the well-known calls for camp and field

Private Robert Bailey, of the 1st Velunteer Cavalry, who halls from Santa Fé, N. M., was shot in the knee and thigh during the advance of June 21. One bullet pierced the thigh bone without breaking it. He didn't feel any pain until two days afterward, when it troubled him a little. He had no fever.

Trooper Robert W. Reid, of the Rough Riders, home is in Raton, N. M., was hit in the htp. The bullet passed upward through the stomach and came out between the ribs on his right side "I pulled through all right, though," he said,

"and I hope, if Colonel Roosevelt is going to do any more fighting, I'll be with him." "He is a fighter, ian't he?" asked the re-

"A fighter! You'd give a lifetime to see that man leading a charge or to hear him yell. Talk about courage and grit and all that-he's got it! Why, I used to keep my eye on him whenever I could, and I've seen him dash into a half of bullets, cheering and yelling all the time, as if possessed. He doesn't know what fear is, and seems to bear a charmed life. All the Rough Riders adore him." Otho Schofield, acting steward of the Olivette, a Boston medical student, saw Benjamin Franklin, a Regular trooper, shot through the chest, "Ben," who is a glant negro, dashed right on, prised to find himself weak as a child. He couldn't account for it until a comrade pointed at his great, deep chest. It was covered with Schoffeld also saw a Spanish lieutenant, a prisoner aboard the Solace. The Spanlard had the knee, through the right thich and also through the face. He recovered quickly. Private William Ray has a valuable souvenir. He is a naturalized Englishman in the 6th Cavalry.

I was plugging away at the Spaniards," he said yesterday, "when I felt a twinge in my left foot. My boot soon filled with blood. The bullet I found alongside my foot. Here it is:

SPANIST USE OF EXPLOSIVES.

Sergeant Halger Klerne, a Dane, of the 6th Infantry, confirmed the story about Spanish cruelty in the use of explodues. He said: Spaniards use both explosive bullets and brassjacketed bullets. They stop at nothing heat was intense. On July 1 we attacked early heat was intense. On July 1 we attacked early in the morning and fought until night without food or water. We had to pass through open ground, and were easy targets for the intrenched Spaniards. I was hit in the right elbow. The bullet is in my pocket now. When our wounded were being carried back to the hore, two Spanish sharpshooters fired at them from the trees. This made our fellows as mad as hornets, and one of them suddenly dropped out of line, crawled like a snake through the underbrush, and finally located the Spanish sharpshooters. He returned to us in about twenty minutes.

"Well," said the boys.

"Two more Spaniards in hell" was the re-

Two more Spaniards in hell!" was the retaken from the Olivette.

An ambulance from Bellevue Hospital took him to his at No. 23 Fifth-ave. Manhattan Many relatives and friends greeted him, but he seemed worn out and melancholy, despite his efforts to be cheerful. He said that he was glad to get home again. When placed comfortably in the ambulance, he characteristically asked for a The crowd seemed very eager to cigarette. The crowd seemed very eager to catch a glimpse of him.

The baseless rumor that yellow fever had broken out aboard the Olivette while on her way North naturally displeased Captain J. P. Stevenson and the other officers of the ship. They said that when they left Cuban waters there was no yellow fever either at Siboney or Guantanamo, where they coaled. They did hear, however, that the fever had broken out at the front.

We are very grateful," said Captain Stevenson. "We had no fever, no infectious or con-tagious disease of any kind, no trouble, no acci-dents. Ideal weather hade us go peed at Guantanamo, and gave us a royal welcome in New-York."

THE MARINE HOSPITAL PATIENTS.

A COMFORTABLE DAY FOR THE WOUNDED ON STATEN ISLAND.

The hundred wounded soldiers who were landed at Stapleton, Staten Island, from the hospital-ship Olivette late on Saturday night and taken to the Marine Hospital enjoyed vesterday as a day of rest and of material comforts such as they have not had since placing their feet on Cuban soil For the most part the men brought on the Ollvette were convalescents, and after an examination of the patients submitted to their care it was found by the surgeons of the Marine Hospital that not more than fifteen men required treatment of a nature to keep them to their cots. Of those confined to their beds not one is likely to suffer any permanent consequences from his wounds, and it is believed that even the most seriously hurt of those now in the Marine Hospital will be charged as cured within a month. The north and south wings have been given over to the accommo dation of the soldiers. Patients who had previously occupied the wards of these buildings have been removed to other parts of the hospital, and an increased surgical and nursing staff has been provided. Dr. George W. Stoner is in charge, and assisting him in attending to the maimed heroes are Drs. H. S. Cumming, H. B. Parker, R. C. Craig and Albert Butler.

MANY PATIENTS OUT OF DOORS. While every possible attention had been given to them in the emergency hospitals erected in the Santiago neighborhood and aboard the Olivette was not until they reached the Marine Hospital that the men were brought into contact with the soothing restfulness of clean sheets and the sympathetic care of the trained hospital nurses. nerely rest and ordinary surgical attention were required by the majority of the soldiers who have been assigned to the Marine Hospital was made piain yesterday when all but the unfortunate fifteen who were detained in the wards spent almost spot than the lawn in front of the hospital could be selected for the well-being of the sick, no wonder that from an early hour in the morning until twilight the men whose limbs and bodies had been perforated by Spanish bullets in their country's cause found the greatest enjoyment either in lying upon the grass or in sitting upon the invalid chairs sheltered by the forest of trees grow-

Although there were no New-York men included in the wounded contingent apportioned to the Marine Hospital, the institution during the day was visited by hundreds of people. They swarmed over the grass land surrounding the buildings, and gathered in quietly admiring circles around the wounded soldiers. Even more than was apparent upon the dark decks of the Olivette when she arrived at Quarantine after nightfall on Saturday night, it of the men seen in the hospital grounds who was not short some article of attire. Many of them had not even shoes or stockings, and others had nothing beyond mere trousers and shirt. Under the hot tropical sun of Cuba the soldiers had thrown away their kits and had divested themselves of all superfluous clothing. These they had been unable to re-These necessities, however, will be quickly relieved. The officials of the Woman's War Relief Association and the National War Relief Association have already intimated their intention of sup-plying ad that the men require.

Another want that was voiced loudly by the patients yesterday was writing paper, envelopes, and stamps for the purpose of communicating with their relatives and friends. These will also given to them to-day by the associations referred to.

PLEASED AT THEIR TREATMENT. The men speak in terms of the sincerest gratification at the treatment that has been afforded to them since they have been in the hospital, and assert that the fresh meat, fresh milk and fresh bread which they are now receiving will be of more benefit to them than the best medical skill. Stoner and his assistants examined their patients yesterday and found that not only would no amputations be necessary, but that there was no likelihood of any complications arising. Numerous gifts were sent to the hospital yesterday. but by far the most acceptable were those of tobacco, cigarettes and cigars.

During the afternoon the Rev. Mr. MacFarlane of the Brothers of Nazareth, who is acting rector of St. Paul's Church, Stapleton, assisted by a choir, held a service in the hospital grounds, which was attended by many of the wounded men.

Judge Thomas, of Indian Territory, whose son was one of the wounded brought in on the Olivette, was among the visitors to the hospital in the He was there to see Sergeant Kline and Private Culver, of the Rough Riders. Both were near Judge Thomas's son when he was shot four times in the log, and both had been mixed up in a shooting affray in the West, which was de-cided by Judge Thomas in favor of the two young in a shooting affray in the west, which was decided by Judge Thomas in favor of the two young men.

The wounded soldiers, who were able to have outdoor exercise talked with willingness of their experiences before Santiago. Members of the 8th and 16th Infantry, who were in the same brigade with the list Regiment at San Juan, repeated their exercions that the allegations of cowardice on the part of the officers of the list Regiment were untrue. There was not one man of the 8th and 18th seen by a Tribune reporter, who, speaking as an eye-witness, did not say that the list fought shoulder to shoulder with the Regulars, and that they left the trenches with the greatest reluctance when they were ordered to drop to the rear, because the smoke powder of their Springfield rifes was drawing the fire of the enemy.

RAIN OF SPANISH BULLETS.

RAIN OF SPANISH BULLETS.

Peter Bergman, of Company C. 4th Infantry, in course of a talk with a Tribune reporter said In the attack of July 1 the Spanish bullets fell over us like rain, and not one of us thought we would get out alive. When I was shot in the neck I was lucky enough to find an ambulance to take me to the emergency hospital, but riding in those experience. Now and again, when the wagons would go bump over a big stone, you would hear the soldlers give a yell of pain, but there was no other means of transit, and we had to put up with it." wagons over the rocky Cuban roads was an awful les F. McCoy, of Battery F. Indiana Artil-

Charles F. McCoy, of Battery F. Indiana Articlery said:

"We were opposed at the fight of San Juan by guns brought from the Spanish ships. The guns were fixed by marines, and we would have been knocked to pieces but for the fact that the shells went over our heads."

Henry O'Malley, of Company B, 8th United States Infanity, at one time a member of Cape Mounted Rifles, told a most interesting story of the battle of El Caney.

Infantry, at one time a member of Cap and Rilles told a most interesting story of the hattle of El Caney.

"We were supporting the firing lines," he said, "but we got the brunt of the enemy's bullets because they were shot high and fell among our rarks. At last we were ordered to advance. We would run about twenty-five yards and then ile down and fire. The bullets were falling about us like hall, and the leaves out from the trees we took shelter under came down as inkek as show. I served throughout the Zulu war, but never saw men cooler under fire than the Americans, and the volunteers were every bit as brave as the Regulars."

Sergeant Kline, of Troop L. Rough Riders, stated that when the first line of Spanish in renchments was taken large numbers of empty wine and liquor bottles were found. He spoke also of the scarcity of tobacco among the American troops. He referred to one case where an officer paid 47 for a five cent parket of tobacco, and said that plugs of tobacco, after tening chewed, were spread out to dry in the sun for smoking purposes.

The following incident was related by Owen McNelly, of Company D. 12th Infantry.

"After the battle of El Caney we took a Spaniard prisoner. He could speak broken English, and in reply to one of our questions he said; We shoot at Cubano, and he run; we shoot at Americano, and he come on more."

OFFICERS TO FORT WADSWORTH.

OFFICERS TO FORT WADSWORTH.

The following officers, after being landed from The following one taken to Fort Wadsworth:

Major JAMES M. HELL, Major ALEXANDER O.

HEODIE and Captain JAMES H. MCLINTOCK, of
One ju United States Volunteer Cavalry.

Captain THOMAS T. KNOX, 1st United States Cavalry.

aptain M. J. HENRY, United States Volunteers First Lieutenant W. M. FISCUS, 24 Infantry. Lieutenant Horace R. Deveraux, Rough Riders

Edward Marshall, "The New-York Journal" and Lieutenant M Nichols, 7th Infantry, were taken correspondent, was the last wounded man to to Roosevelt Hospital, Manhattan Sixty wounded men were removed from the Olivette yesterday on the tug General Hancock and were taken to Governor's Island. The me only slightly wounded and were put in barracks at

DISTRIBUTION OF THE WOUNDED.

ST. PETER'S HOSPITAL, BROOKLYN. ALLSHUSE, Milton, Troop H, 3d Cavalry

BRIGANCE, Andrew J., Company E, 10th In-BUILBEE, Harry W., Company E, 2d Infantry. BARRY, Sergeant M. H., Troop G, 1st Cavalry, BALLEY, Robert Z, Troop F, 1st Volunteer Cav

BELTZ, Sergeant Walter P., Company A, 20th BEEVE, Walter S., Troop B, 1st Volunteer Cav-

CARTER, D. T., Company F, 6th Infantry, CRADDOCK, John, Company F, 13th Infantry COIT, Ruel, Company D, 2d Massachusetts Volun-CLARK, William H., Company A, 25th Infantry.

COLMAN, Sergeant Frank, Company F. 25th In-CALVIN, George, Company D, 1st Infantry. COOPER, William L., Troop E, 1st Cavalry

DETAMORE, George W., Troop E, 1st Volunteer DANIELSON, Frederick J., Company C. 17th In-DORWART, George, Company E, 17th Infantry.

DUNLAP, Orle F., Company F, 16th Infantry. DOUGLAS, Barney, Company G, 25th Infantry. ELLIS, Warren E. Troop D, 1st Cavalry. GARRISON, John, Company C, 17th Infantry, GLYNN, William, Company B, 8th Infantry, HOLMES Thomas, Troop D, 1st Volunteer Cav-HADDEN, David, Troop B, 1st Volunteer Cavalry

JAMES, Charles M., Troop I, 1st Cavalry, JAMES, W. W., Company C, 12th Infantry JOHNSON, Sergeant Smith, Troop A, 10th Cav-

JOHNSON, Walker, Troop C, 10th Cavalry. KOCH. Michael, Company H, 16th Infantry, KREYSER, Gus. Company G, 7th Infantry. LAUSEN, Hans. Troop F, 6th Cavalry. MEAGHER, Ritto F., Troop F. 1st Volunteer Cav-

MURPHY, Corporal William, Company H, 6th In-M'MANES, William R., Company F, 13th Infantry. M'MAHON, William, Company C, 760 Infantry, M'MHLAN, Lee, Troop D, 1st Volunteer Cavalry, PARADISE, Walla, Company M, 2d Massachu-

MATICE. William A., Company F, 17th Infantry.

RILEY, James B., Company B. 7th Infantry. RAFFERTY, James E., Company C. 4th Infantry. ROGERS, John, Company B, 8th Infantry. RIDDLE, Alfred, Company E, 24th Infantry. REINKE, Julius, Company B, 7th Infantry. SEAVER. George H., Troop L., 1st Volunteer

SMITH, Joseph M., Company E, 71st New-York Volunteers. SMITH, Burt. Company C. 4th Infantry SWIFT, Albert B., Company H. 10th Infantry TATES, Corporal William, Company A, 24th In-TOUSEY, Orville H., Company H, 17th Infantry, WIELD, William A., Troop K, 3d Cavalry, WILBORN, James, musician, Company D, 13th Infantry. LONG ISLAND COLLEGE HOSPITAL BROOKLYN.

ARIAL, Henry E., Company L. 2d Massachusetts Volunteers.

ANDERSON, Louis E., Troop E. 10th Cavalry.

BLACKMER, George G., Company L., 2d Massachusetts Volunteers.

BELDEN, Henry H., Company A, 6th Infantry. BAHN, August, Company H, 17th Infantry.

BENNETT, George, Company C, 24 Massachusetts CARLSON, John, Company D, 3d Infantry.
CRIPPEN, Elijah, Troop C, 9th Cavalry.
DURGIN, Arthur F., Company C, 7th Infantry.
DILLERT, George B., Company D, 17th Infantry.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER

The Only Known Solvent of Renal Calculi and Stone in the Bladder, Both Uric Acid and Phosphatic.

A Veritable Antidote to Albuminuria of Bright's Disease.

ANALYTICAL REPORT OF

DR. A. CABRIEL POUCHET,

Professor of Pharmacology and Materia Medica of the Faculty of Medicine Paris. Director of the Laboratory of the Consulting Committee of Public Hygiene of Paris.

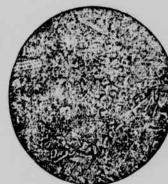

Paris, February 12, 1897. The collections of disintegrated or broken down Vesteal or Renal Calculi which form the subject of the following analyses and researches were sent me by Dr. Edward Chambers Laird, Resident Physician, Buffale Lithia Springs, Virginia, U. S. A. They were discharged by different patients after the use of the mineral water of BUFFALO LITHIA SPRING No. 2 for a variable time.

I advise here, from the experience of Dr. Laird, the use of this mineral water, which has had with him a happy influence on the disintegration of the Calcult and their elimination. It is to demonstrate this that he has requested me to make this analysis.

The official section of the Calcult and the has requested me to the contract of the calcult.

The collections of the disintegrated Calculi submitted to my examination were eight in number. A fragment of each collection has been reproduced by photographs, which are designated by letters of the alphabet.

Calculi "A"—See photographs of specimens magnified that diameters, designated by "A") These disintegrated Renal Calculi are very numerous, and present themselves in the form of grains of various sizes from that of the size of a pin to that of a peal, of reddish-yellow color, very hard and nucleus in the contre. They are thus composed:—Urate of Ammonia, for the greater part; Free Uric Acid, small quantity: Carbonate of Ammonia and Magnesia, small quantity: Uric Pigment acide rosacique.

Calculus "C"—See photographs of specimens magnified 29 diameters, designated by "C") Vesical Calculus reduced to crystalline powder, granning, of a gayish-white color, rather friable. Chemical composition—Phosphate of Ammonia and Magnesia, for the greater part; Carbonate of Lime, small quantity; Oxalate of Lime, very small quantity.

Calculus "B"—Theory are the Calculus on the life of the Carbonate of Lime, while the color of the col small quantity.

Calculus "B"—Thotographs of Coleulus emitted.) Dr. Ponchet says:—"This distintegrated Vesical Calculus presents itselvent networm of many fragments of a granular aspect, of a greyish-white color. They are easily broken, and the contexture of the fragments show that they are porous throughout. Chemical composition—Urate of Ammonia, for the greater part; Carbonate of Ammonia and Magnesia, in Calculus "D"—Protographs of Calculus omitted.) He says:— Vesical Calculus thoroughly disintegrated, fragments many and angular, granular aspect, of a rather fragile consistence, of a greyish-white color. Chemical composition—Bicalcie Phosphate, for the greater part frashle directly to the blowpipes Oxidate of Lime, small quantity; Carbonate of Ammonia and Magnesia, small quantity; Xanthine, very small quantity." Report up to six specimens omitted.

Dr. William H. Drummond. Peofessor of Medical Jurisprudence. Bishop's University, Mantreal, Cunada — in the Acute and Chronic Nephritis Bright's Disease of the Kidneys) of Gouty and Rhenmatic origin, as well as in the grave! Albuminuria of Pregnancy.

BUFFALO LITHIA WATER to act as a veritable anti-of Pregnancy. Buffering the most acute pain and distress, from the presence of a large Calculus, experienced entire relief in eight days, the stone becoming disintegrated and passing away without any BUFFALO LITHIA WATER has a remarkable effect in breaking up in debris the various masses of stone. It seems to me that a freer use of this marvellous water would obviate many a case of Lithotomy and Lithotrity."

BUFFALO LITHIAWATER

PROPRIETOR, BUFFALO LITHIA SPRINGS, VA. Springs open for guests from June 15th to October 1st.

DONSTAD, Carl, Troop 1, 1st United States Cav-DALIEN, Peter H., Company A, 22d Infantry. FIELD, Albert, Company F. 22d Infantry. GRAHAM, William, quartermaster's department. GARDENER, James G., Company B, 6th Infantry.

GRAY, Albert, Company B, 6th Infantry. GROSSE, Otto, Troop A, 6th Cavalry. GIRRENS Gilmore Troop E. 16th Cavalry. HAND, Frank J., Company F. 15th Infant: USTON, William A., Company C. 24th Infantry HOWARD, Ralph H., Company C, 6th Infantry, HILL, John T., Troop E. Ist Volunteer Cavalry. JACKSON, William, Troop B, 19th Cavalry. KNILBS, William P., Company E, 7th Infantry, KRAUS, Paul, Company F, 6th Infantry.

LEDERER, Charles, Hospital Corps, 33d Michigan LOZANA, Gregorio (Cuban), 19th Infantry LOCKWOOD, Andrew G., Company D. 32d Michigan Volunteers.
MAURER, Adolph, Company B, 7th Infantry.

MORRIS Frank L., Company E, 1st Infantry, MANNING, Mont. Company E, 6th Infantry. ORME, Norman, Company B, 1st Volunteer Cav-

PETERSEN, Augustus, Company D, 8th In-POWERS, Albert, Troop F, 1st Volunteer Cav-

PATE. Stephen A., Troop B. 1st Volunteer Cav POWELL, Robert, Company G. 25th Infantry. REDD. Samuel, Company I, 10th Cavalry, REYNOLDS, Walter S., Company C, 10th In-

REOPELL, Wilmore L. Company B, 2d Massa-chusetts Volunteers. RAWSON, Robert, Troop C, 16th Cavalry. REYNOLDS, Hamel, Company B, 1st Infantry, RANSOM, Frank, Company L, 33d Michigan Vol-

SHEEBY Michael Company A, 22d Infantry. SIMPSON, William F. Company G. 10th Infantry SMITH, James C., Troop B, 6th Cavalry. SALTSMAN, Carl. Company A, 16th Infantry. SCHEU, Otto, Company B, 3d Infantry. STEWART, Luther L., Troop G. 1st Volunteer

VAYON, Ezra, Company A, 2d Infantry. WRAY, William, Troop F. 6th Cavalry. ROOSEVELT HOSPITAL, MANHATTAN. DEVEREAUX, Horace R., second lieutenant, 1st Volunteer Cavalry

NICHOLS, second lieutenant, 7th United States Infantry. MARINE HOSPITAL, STATEN ISLAND. ALGER, G. B., Company D. 6th Infantry.

ALBERTSON, E. J., Company F. 1st Volunteer APITZ, W., Company C, 6th Infantry. ASHLEY, C., Company B, 2d Massachusetts In-BRAUTON, George E., Company B, 10th Cavalry

BEAL, F. N., Company D. 1st Volunteer Cavalry, BAKER, Charles, Company F, 24th Infantry. BROUNSLER, P., Company A, 24th Infantry, BILY, J., Company G, 16th Infantry. BERGMAN, P., Company C, 4th Infantry, BERTSCHEY, L., Company A, 1st Volunteer Cav-BINGHAM, Corporal J., Company G. 2d Infantry.

BARTELMO, P. A., Company D. 18th Infantry. BREWER, W. F., Company E. 17th Infantry. BRIGHTWELL, H., Company G, 25th Infantry. BALLANFAUT, B. B., Company D. 16th Infantry. CROWLEY, M., Company D. 7th Infantry, CLARKE, W., Company E. 24th Infantry. COPE, Corporal C., Company D, 13th Infantry. COWEN, R., Company H, 25th Infantry. CLINTON, P. A., Company E, 24th Infantry. CULVER, E., Company L. 1st Volunteer Cavalry DAVIS, J., Company F, 24th Infantry, DAHLBERG, C. E., Company A, 21st Infantry. DORSEY, Louis, Company H, 1st Volunteer Cavalry. EMERY, John K., Company F. 13th Infantry.

ELLINGHAM, R. M. F., Company A, 22d Infan-EAGAN, Daniel J., Company C. 3d Cavalry.

FARRELL, T., first sergeant, Company B, 6th Infantry. FENNERT, C., Company E, 18th Infantry. FARLOW, G. W., Company D. 22d Infantry, GORDY, A. C., Company E. 6th Infantry, GERARD, C., artificer, Company B. 6th Infantry, GOULD, L. D., Company A. 10th Cavalry, GRIMES, J., corporal, Company B, 24th Infantry, HENDRICKS, J., Company D, 16th Infantry. HOLCOMBS, H. V., Company B, 21st Infantry.

HOUSTON, A., first sergeant, Company C, 19th Infantry.
HALL, C. M., Company C, 22d Infantry. HENDERSON, C. E., Company G. 19th Infantry, HOLDEN, Corporal D., Company F. 28th Infantry, HALLEMS, F., musician, Company C, 24th In-HABLE, J., Company D. 21st Infantry. HOADLEY, C. H., Company K, 2d Massachusetts, HARBISON, B. F., Company G. 16th Infaontry. HARTLE, A. C., Company F, 1st Volunteer Cavalry.

IVES. L., Company A. 2d Infantry.

KING, Sergeant F. M., Company K. 1st Cavalry.

KREBSCHMER, Corporal A., Company C, 16th Infantry. KLINE, Sergeant J. D., Company L. 1st Vol-untrer Cavalry. KROUSKOP, W. B., Company F, 17th Infantry. KELLENBENZ, Corporal G., Company C. 13th KLICKI, J., Company F, 7th Infantry, LINEBACK, W. W., Company D., 7th Infantry, LAMBERTSON, G., Company B, 2d Infantry.

LANGE, A., Company C. 17th Infantry. MILLER, F. A., Company B. 19th Cavalry, M'COY, C. F., Company F. 2d Artillery. MENTALIER, J., Cuban volunteer, MUNSON, W., Company C. 6th Infantry, MISKEWICZ, J. B., Company F. 3d Infantry. M'NALLY, O., Company D. 12th Infantry. M'CARTIN, Sergoant M. J., Company G, 9th Massachusetts Infontry. M'QUINNEY, M., Company G, 13th Infantry, MACK, J., Company F, 7th Infantry, M'MILLAN, J., Company A, 7th Infantry. O'MEALEY, M., Company A. 21st Infantty, MITTSCHEL, H., Company D. 5d Cavalry MPHEETERS, Sergeant U., Company C. 2d In-

MEITHER, C., Company G, 22d Infantry. NICOLAZ, H., Company F. 18th Infantry. NEWCOMB, M. L., Company D. 1st Volunteer Cavalry, OAKES, N. W., Company H. 13th Infantry. O'CONNOR, P., artificer, Company D, 8th Infantry,

O'MALLEY, H. R., Company B, 8th Infantry. PARKER, W. E., sergeant, Company E, 10th Cavalry, PAYNE, W., sergeant, Company E, 10th Cavalry, PRENER, F., Company D, 16th Infantry. ROGAN, W. J., Company A, 7th Infantry. ROSS, C. F., Company G. 8th Infantry. REDD, S., Company I. 10th Cavalry. RODGERS, J. M., Company D. 13th Infantry. SELLMAN, William, Company B, 8th Infantry.

SCOTT. A. D., Company M. 34th Michigan Infantry. SWANN, U., Company E. 25th Infantry. SAGER, George, Company B. 6th Infantry, TAFT, R., Company C. 2d Massachusetts, TAYLOR, I., Company F, 10th Cavalry, THURMAN, W. G., Company E, 16th Infantry.

SHEPARD, R., Company H. 22d Infantry.

THOMPSON, Alfred, Company B, 24th Infantry, WUNDER, Sergeant T., Company G, 6th In-WATROUS, L. E., Company G, 20th Infantry. WALLS, E. R., Company E, 1st Cavalry.

WASHINGTON, W., Company E. 24th Infantry. ZELLERS, J. C., Company B, 24th Infantry. ZEITZ, musician, 16th Infantry. GOVERNOR'S ISLAND.

ALEXANDER, W. S., Company B. 12th Infantry. AUST, A., Company C, 4th Infantry. BUCKLEY, Corporal J., Company D, 4th Infantry.

BLOOMER, A. L., Hespital Corps. BLOOMER, A. L., Hespital Corps.

BEESON, G. I., Company G. 15th Infantry.

BUCKNER, D., Company G. 25th Infantry.

BURNS, M. J., Company C. 3th Massachusetts.

BAIRD, W. E., Hospital Corps.

BAKER, H. L., Company I, 71st Regiment, NewYork Volunteers.

BLACK, C. E., Company R. 4th Infantry.

BLACK, C. E., Company B. 4th Infantry. BURG, G., Company C. 17th Infantry. CROWDER, E., Company G. 24th Infantry. CONROY, R. L., Company B, 6th Infantry, CLARK, F. H., Company A, 21st Infantry. COYLE, M. H., Company G, 1st Volunteer Car DENNING, J. C., Company A, 18th Infantry, DUNN, Corporal John T., Company A, 8th In-fantry.

conunued on page 11.

DOUGHERTY, Sergeant P., Company F, 71st